

[Anchor:]

Well, you've probably seen the ads by now, and yes, Bond IS back for his twenty-second film.

[INSERT VIDEO VO]

"Quantum of Solace" stars Daniel Craig in his second outing as the legendary British spy. This time around, Bond is set on revenge against a shadowy organization that was responsible for the death of his lady-friend in 2006's "Casino Royale" (roy-AL).

Judy Dench appears once more as Double-Oh-Seven's disapproving boss, "M." And Jeffrey Wright returns as CIA agent Felix Leiter ("lighter").

The latest "Bond Girl" is played by Ukrainian actress Olga Kurylenko (cure-ee-LAIN-ko), who's no stranger to action movies. She appeared in the recent "Max Payne" and "Hitman."

"Quantum of Solace" was directed by Marc Forster, who's not really known for making big-budget action movies. Forster is the guy behind 2001's "Monster's Ball" -- which won Halle Berry a best actress Oscar -- as well as the more recent "The Kite Runner."

[Anchor:]

"Quantum of Solace" also features an opening credits song by Jack White. It's out now in megaplexes everywhere.